FRENCH 75

£13.95

Botanist Gin, Fresh Lemon Juice, Homemade Sugar Syrup & Champagne

"When champagne came around during Prohibition, it was time to mix up a French 75! The cocktail is named after a rather intimidating gun that was used by the French during WWI – a fun fact to impress your friends with at your next cocktail party!"

MANHATTAN

OLD FASHIONED

Makers Mark, Brown Sugar, Angostura & Orange Bitter

"For as long as there have been cocktails, the Old Fashioned has been around. Until the late 19th century, it's what you would get if you asked the bartender for a "whiskey cocktail." While the cocktail survived Prohibition, lots of creative takes were dreamt up when the country was dry – which caused several different conflicting versions of the recipe!"

THE SOUTH SIDE

£13.95

Bathub Gin, Homemade Sugar Syrup & Fresh lime Juice & Mint leaves

"We can't forget the daring gangsters of Chicago's South Side. Supposedly, Al Capone was a fan of this drink."

"Ernest Hemingway loved his daiquiris and a Cuban bartender created a special recipe for the writer in 1921. The Hemingway daiquiri takes the rum and lime combo to a new level with the addition of maraschino liqueur and grapefruit."
